Our Heads Raised in Glory or in Everlasting Horror and Disgrace?

This Sunday we begin the glorious season of Advent. The standard explanation or description of Advent is that time in which we remember Jesus' coming in history and His coming again in majesty.

As life-long Christians, we have been immersed since we were old enough to remember in the teaching that Jesus, God and Man, came to earth as a baby, and later suffered and died paying the price for our sins so that heaven would be within our reach. We are so familiar with this basic teaching that it does not seize our imagination as it should. As we enter into this season which is supposed to be peaceful and blessed, we do well to imagine ourselves before salvation was possible.

In fact, in many circles in the world and in our country, with the wholesale rejection of Christianity, many have put themselves in just this situation. If there is no Jesus, and if God is a lie created by evil people as a means to control others and get into their wallets, then life really has no purpose. Without a good, gracious, and merciful God to bring the universe into existence, to govern it, and to later redeem it, the only thing left for any of us to do is to pursue pleasure, think only of ourselves, and make no effort at virtue.

It is common to hear contemporary atheists and secularists say things like, "If you need God or religion to make you good, you are not good to begin with." In other words, we are capable of making ourselves good by our own efforts if we just put our minds to it. We might check with the over 100 million people who were murdered during the 20th Century by secular atheists like Mao Zedong, Joseph Stalin, the Khmer Rouge, Adolf Hitler, Ho Chi Minh, Margaret Sanger, and their ilk, to see how gracious human nature is when it is left to its own devices.

So in a very real sense, we do not have to imagine what life would be like without a Savior. We have a century of bloodshed and a couple of generations now of people who live as if the most important things in life are the acquisition of power and influence, hoarding wealth, and pursuing pleasure. Over and against all of this we await the birth of baby boy in an obscure forgotten corner of the world, who brings us the reason for pursuing truth, goodness, and beauty and then teaches and shows us how to do so. Happy Advent!!
